The question naturally arises, Who was the traitor? Profound secrecy was main-tained towards loyal citizens, (and very properly too,) up to the very marching of the columns. No dispatches announcing the great event left Washington until the ng of the 17th. Before this time, the whole matter had been canvassed in Richmond, orders had been sent thence to down to Manassas, and he had begun to te that movement

A few days ago we made an estimate of the number of soldiers who had reached Springfield, Mo., on Monday last, and placed the force at 21,600 men, with 5,000 more within ten days march, making a total of 26,600.

bigades of Lane and Sturgis.

The mistake of the Sentinel consists first in reckoming each regiment at the harimum of 1,046 men, when the truth is they did not average more than 800 effective men, fit to march. We know this to be true. Secondly, the Sentinel made no. they did not average more than 800 effective men, fit to march. We know this to be true. Secondly, the Sentine's made no allowance for troops that had to be left behind to garrison various points. For instance, three or four regiments had to be left at Jefferson, one or more at Sedalia, Tipton, Warsaw, Lexington, Rolla, Bonnille, and other points, and artillery and cavalry had to be left behind at each place. The Sentine's must deduct all these men from its 42,000; and must also deduct 3,000 in 5,000 more who were left by the wayside, sick; of them, Fremont's division alone inft 1,000 at Warsaw, as it passed.

Since writing our former article, we have learned that Gen. Wyman's brigade, consisting of two regiments of infantry, a squadron of cavalry, and a battery of utilitery, had arrived at Springfield, adding some 2,000 men to the army.

We also hear of two regiments belonging to Hunter's and Pope's divisions, hav-

He was marching upon Springleid—he had occupied Wilson's Creek—and was preparing to strack the Federa's zmy. In fact, it is stated that on Sunday night last, Gen. Fremont resumed command of the army with the design of msrching out and fighting a battle, before Gen. Hunter reached Springleid. Finally, however, he concluded not to do it, and the battle was not fough.

Yesterday the Republican stated, through its "special" correspondence from Springleid, that upon the announcement of the removal of Gen. Fremont, "several compassies threw down their arms, but subsequently went to duty."

Take Election in Kansas.

[From the Leavensworth Conservative, 6th.]

Yesterday was a spirited day in this town and county. The location of the Capital seemed to be the absorbing question. Lawronce and Topeks had spent large sums of money here. Leavenworth has done nothing in this contest. Her dusty was to prevent a election, and to save the State the expense of the two or three hundred thousand dollars which will presently be voted for the erection of Capitol buildings. This was also the lustrest and duty of the people of the State at large. Leavenworth has been led into error by the politicisus and merchants. Her vote has been given for Lawrence or Topeka, as a profered, by the Democratic parts, yet that traitor conclays "three of on" the State ticket. They did not have the name of a single State officer on their tickets; they did not even vote for the essencies on the State ticket. Such meanness, such deprayity, such after contempt of Union men and Union principles as why seterday manifested by the Democrate of this country, merits and will receive the exteristion of loyal men in all pasts of Kansas.

But the contest is over and we are constant with having done our duty.

We referred yesterday to the plea of the London Morning Herald (high tory organ), against the naval expedition to the South-era coast, based upon the danger of awaking a great slave insurrection in the cot-ton States, if the Union forces should chieve a decided victory. While it is ufficient answer to say that the objection cracy, proposes nothing less than sheer immunity to the fountains and hot beds of fearful weight upon Missouri and Virginia, there is another view of the case which ought to be well considered If South Carolina, for innce, has fostered a system of society om, so violating the laws of mosphere is likely to set it ablaze, is She has put a powder magazine under her own house and then wickedly and maliother people burn to the ground, but keep the fire away from my premises because it might blow up?" Let us be just to South Carolina. She does not enter any immunity from the logical rehigh tory circles of Great Britain that the Congress meets in December; and it comes together not a moment too soon. It is, perhaps, unfortunate that the representatives are not direct and fresh from the ople—the creation of the last election— e reflex and embodiment of their opin-as, purposes and high patriotism—but virg, during the summer, mingled with e masses, assisted in the formation and ally anxious to so aid, admonish, advise or reprove the Administration, as to inspire it with seme part of the lofty energy, the patriotic fervor, and the self-ascrificing zeal of the men in whose behalf the war is it with seme part of the lofty energy, the patriotic fervor, and the self-sacrificing geal of the men in whose behalf the war is waged, and who will foot the bills when the war is at an end. We hear, and with exultation which creates new hope for the glory and permanency of our institutions, that the members of the Home and Senate, East and West, are alive to the importance and necessity of their work; and that the rotten places, the sources of weakness and corruption, the causes of humiliation and defeat, will be boldly and freely exposed to the mation's gaze by, the action which they will be compelled to take. We live in days when the Military Power is every crything; and the danger that we have apprhended is that it would become dominant over and give law to the Civil Authority, and by encroachment after encroachment, by weakening the Constitution here, diregarding it there, and defing it younders, we should gradually but, to wise and watchful men, not imperceptibly, build up a Military Despotism, at the head of which the first successful commander, with an army of half a million at his heels, would ment, by weakening the Constitution here, diregarding it there, and defying it yonder, we should gradually but, to wise and watchful men, not imperceptibly, build up a Mittary Despotism, at the head of which the first successful commander, with an army of half a million at his heels, would dictate to what only last year was a Republic. It will be the duty of Congress, as the representative of the Civil Powerfor the people, the source whence all power springs—to watch the indications which point in that direction, to compel the retracing of the steps which lead to that undesirable goal, and to reprove, and, if.

Gen. Hunter's position on the contraction is understood to be as follows when he set sail in command of the Great Expedition. But he is not in advance of the most enlightened public opinion, though we fear that he will be called back from his position by the Administration which is not yet en rapport with the people on the causes and treatment of the war. By his plan of operations announced above, the system of chattel bondage be comes, whenever a Pederal army moves, a thing of choice on the part of the bondman, with which the Government will have no with which the Government will have no right to interfere. We shall see what Washington will do; and meanwhile we point to this declaration made by the General as conclusive proof that the Proclama-tion of Frement, liberating the slaves of rebels, had nothing to do with his removal.

In this emergency the following plan was adopted:

The party who brought the order for Fremont's remeval, from Washington, having become known to the General's supporters, passed onward towards Fremont, and suffered himself to be arrested from further progress by the cordon of watchful guards between here and Fremont's camp, while two other parties, with copies of the order, undertook to work their way through all obelacles, and to deliver the order for Fremont's remeval to himself and General Hunter. One of these, disguised as a Massouri farmer, succeeded, after much difficulty, in reaching Fremont's headquarters. He applied to an Aid for permission to communicate important news to the General, and was refused, but urged to make it known to the Aid. This he absolutely declined, and finally got a personal interview with Fremont himself, He immediately read the order to him, aloud. committee with remained himself, its immediately read the order to him, aloud. There was, here and at Pilot Knob, yester-cay, the following Engineers: Three commissioned and three non-commissioned officers and twelve privates, at work on the fortifications. At Ironton—the Eighteenth regithem, Gol. Hovey, of the Normal, remains in command.

We are rapidly completing our fort at the place, and well soon he ready for motating the heavy guns which are already here. The interior is to be furnished with feembyroof queriers for an entire regiment, and our magazine is already completed, out of the reach of shell, abot and the chemy. Whatever may be said of Fremont's extravagance, this fort is a good lavestment. The material costs but little; the soldiers do the labot; and when finished fit will enable a small body of mem to hold this post against very great odds.

But is Fremont really removed? As an editor, is shoped you good to know. I think the Transcas approved his famous proclausition, if I am nest mistaken; as a good "Dong is Democrat," I have done the same, with wowy officer of this and other regiments with whom I have conversed. It has already almost most Missourd if ree State—not by consecuting the live whattals, but by frightening their rebel owners into running them of South. He then became, like manylothers in Kanasa, a very radical Anti-Slavery man, liberated his slaves, and took an active part in the politics of the State. He was the opposing candidate in the Reymblican Convention of the present Executive. A man of great energy, fine pre-acted, and signal addition, the cause of the State. He was deservedly popular in Kanasa. He regiment is now commanded by the Livetenant Colorest, John Ritchia. He is one of the "Old Guard" and was a most active participant on the Free State side. He is extremely like Capt. The Nashville Patriot 1 The Na Lieut. Lattirell, at Knorville, to send all the ordance and summittion and forces there to the Gap, in the quickest possible time—as thorizing him to press into service anything recessory to facilitate the transportation. Gen. Zolitocfer was expected at Cumberland. This dispatch was received in Knorville, at 11 o'clock, Monday, and was read by Mr. Crippes.

This movement indicates that Gen. Zolitocher did not consider his force sufficiently large to hold Camp Buckner, at Cumberland, Ford, and falls base on the Gap, as a stronger position:

Now, how many dealers in this city sell such cit? I think not due, for I have tried the best, and the oils, when heated, I find generate a gas that will explode. Comparative safety is only to be obtained by those who use oils by seaing that their lamps do not become heased. If they do they are as liable to explode as camphene or burning fluid. Let our dealers see to it that they secure a sars illuminating fluid, even if they have to charge one dollar per gallon. The prices now range from 70 to 80 cents per gallon.

— A sad misforince seems to be impending over the magnificent old rains of Meddelberg Castle, in consequence of the rainway sunneis which is being taken through the fill upon which the ancient building stands. Since the commencement of the works, several rents and fisures, some of them serious, have made their appearance along the whole length of the castle walls. In the lower parts of the structure, as in the chapel, and especially is the cellar with the great tan, the injuries are more considerable tann in the upper apartments. The Elavente Wisconsin,—A dispatch from Gov. Randall, received in this city on Saturday evening, anthoritatively states that the Eleventh Wisconsin Regiment will leave Madison on Monday forenoon, arriving in Chicago a very important location, and would give their aid to the work. It was a matter the should will think, act, and talk about. We have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the Government; up to the present time we have never had but little paironage from the lorined as to make it entirely inaccessible to any hostile ship. The commerce of the lakes, this year, will equal in value the entire foreign commerce of the country. Its cost to the Government is merely nominal—a few lighthouses and a revenue cutter with a single gnal Contrast this with the millions samually unpended in the defence and care of the foreign commerce of the country, and it will be but a modest and reasonable request to ask the Government to provide arms and munitions at a naval depot, which would enable us to arm our vast lake marine, and under all circumstances secure command of the lakes. For thy the straits of Mackinar, and we have a great lahend see absolutely inaccessible to any memy. Here at Chicago we may asfely and securely collect our areas and munitions, and be prepared for "any emergency which may arise.

Government, the great Northwest has been practically ignored. Immense appropriations for defence, naral stores, arms, depois, fortifications, de., on the South Atlantic and Gulf of Marion, have been lavished from the national Treasury, but the great Northwest has been disregarded.

We secure then the great object of protecting the commerce of the lakes and our Northern boundary, by a mard depot, and armory lare, we have a manufactory at that secure laren where our ships and feets would lie in safety, and where they would naturally go for larety, we have our ships and feets would lie in safety, and where they would naturally go for ern boundary, by a naval depot, and armory and foundry at Chicaso. With an armory lever, we have a manufactory at that secure laven where our ships and fleets would lie in safety, and where they would naturally go for supplies of all kinds.

One other great but cheap improvement, and you make the Northwest what nature designed she should be. Enlarge the Illinois and Michigan Canal, so as to open steemboat communication between the Mississippi and the lakes, and you bind the East and West with indissoluble ties. You make the East will be seen the mississippi and the lakes, and you bind the fast and West with indissoluble ties. You make the East and West one, in destroy, forever. Commercially you turn the Mississippi river into Lake Michigan. You bring New Orleans to Chicago. When peace is returned, and the fig again flosts, as float it will, from those lakes to the Gulf, you, if you please, turn Luke Michigan through Illinois to the Mississippi, the great Father of Waters. You bind together, by ties of commercial interest, North, South, East, and West. These magnificent improvements would benefit every section alike, East and West, North and South.

Let, then, the Northwest, as a unit, ask for these most important but comparatively learnessive improvements. If we of the Northwest are only true to ourselves, a glorious destiry is before us. Let us arise to the dignity of the great work which is before us, discarding all narrow, local, accional jealousy. Let us in a spirit of generous liberality help each other. Let us with a united voice sak justice of the Federal Government, and by so coing, we shall promote the prosperity of the whole country.

The Chairman then rose and introduced Hon. Wm. B. Ogden, "sue of the loid wheel horses in all improvements in the city." Mr. Ogden said:

The subject before the meeting to-night has for prolonged applane, during which Gol.

In. M. Arnold, who when the noise had subsided, said: "You all know and have his, known for years, James A. Mulligan; let me introduce to you the her of Lexington."

Chiesgo. In these camps the most thorough system prevails. The discipline is rigid. The soldiers are drilled every day under competent instructors appointed by the Governor.

Camp Douglas is in every respect a model camp. Col. Tucker, who has made military matters a study for many years, devotes his whole time and attention to the duties which he has been called upon to perform. The result is clearly shown in the rapid, substantial improvements being insugarated daily. An unyielding and thorough discipline is enforced. Drill occurs every day. The men are comfortably and indeed handsomely clothed. Their barracks are warm and commoditions. Instead of lying in camp as herotofore, inscrive and demoralized, the various comparies are daily practiced in those evolutions which not only improve the physical strength, but train them in the necessary duits of the field. The arms to be used in drill have not yet been furnished, but positive assurances have been furnished, but positive assurances have been received from Gov. Yates, that they will soon be forthcoming. This will prove an havaluable benefit and remedy the defect in drill which has hereiofore cristed. It is the determination of the Governor that no more regiments shall leave the Siste until they are well versed in the use of the musket.

The work of building barracks still continues. In their exalty camp new barracks are in course of construction for Brackett's Cavalry Regiment, and stables for their horses. These barracks have been constructed in a nest, simple style, and although desistate of commont and adaptation to all the wants of the soldiers. In their erection a strict economy was consulted, and the State, thanks to Col. Tucker's personal supervision, will be at little expense for their erection a strict economy was consulted, and the State, thanks to Col. Willism M. Newell et al. vs. Chicago Marine and Fire Insurance Company.

In United States Circuit Court Northern District Illinois, November, A. D. 1861.

On the 25th day of February, A. D. 1861, the plaintiff made a deposit with the defendants, then doing s banking business in the city of Chicago, and took an ordinary certificate of deposit, stating that the plaintiff has "deposited in this office five hundred and darily-lived to their order on return of this certificate of index to their order on return of this certificate."

on the fourth of Juns, A. D. 1861, payment was demanded of the certificate, according to ta terms, as is alleged, to wit, "Illinois cur-rency," but the delendant tendered only in man ment notes of different banks of the State reacy," but the delendant tendered only in payment notes of different banks of the State of Illinois, worth from fifty to sixty cents on the dollar.

The Court slowed the defendants to introduce evidence to show winst was the meaning of the characters "Ills Cy." as understood among bankers and business men generally, and by the community at large, and gave the following instructions to the Jury:

1st. If the Jury shall believe from the evidence that these characters "Ills Cy" mean the notes of Benks of lithiois, which at the time of deposit passed current as money in ordinary business transsitions at Chicago be tween man and man, then the court is of opinion that the true construction of the contract is that the defendants were to pay like funds which passed current at the time demand of payment was made if there were any such funds corrent at the time.

2d. If there were not any such funds so current at the time, then the true construction of the contract is that the defendants should pay the value of the notes at the time of the deposit.

The jury found that the characters "Ills.

by the varie of the Botts at the time of the deposit.

The jury found that the characters "Illa. C"," were intended to designate glibs various notes of the Banks of Illiands which were then current and passed in money in usual business transactions, but below the specie atandard value.

The jury also found that there were no such notes current at the time payment was dodemanded.

The jury brought in a verdict for the plaintifu for Bottlin, which was the value of the money, as found by the jury, at time of deposit, and interest from the time it was domanded.
